IN THE OLD MARKET HALL.

ADVISE OF THE TEMPERANCE LECTURER MURPHY.

His Tribute to Chief of Police Poe—How All the Bar-Rooms Could be Closed—Political Enthusiasm—Pledge Signing.

Francis Murphy, the temperance reformer, has a great deal of magnetism. The spacious hall over the Old Market was filled almost to its utmost last night, and the congregation represented every phase of Richmond life.

The meeting was opened by singing several hymns. Mr. Murphy read a part of the thirty-first chapter of Isaiah, commenting on it as he read. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Turnbull.

Mr. Murphy during the collection urged the ushers to give the people time to open their pocket-books. "Here," he said, "hand me the pocket-book." He put a quart in, and said: "Dr. Turnbull, charity begins at home."

Another hymn was then sung with a will by all in the house. Mr. Murphy breaking in several times with a hearty "Amen." "Thank God," "Little louder."

Mr. Murphy said that the good news of God's love to erring men is the joy of this world.

"I wonder if I shall ever learn to love one another," he spoke of the chief of police as being a great and good man with his eyes on him. He said Major Poe told him that the greatest trouble in that section of the city was liquor drinking. Say, in the name of God, let us all be charitable, and with applause. He said: "Who can say anything that comes after the King?"

TO THE WOMEN OF THE SOUTH. Appeal from the Jackson Memorial Association.

The Ladies' Jackson Memorial Association has issued the following address:

"We, the ladies of the Jackson Memorial Association," of Lexington, Va., have the honor to call on you for your contribution to the monument to our great Confederate leader, Stonewall Jackson, prompted by the great need of the undertaking, appeal for aid to the women of the South.

"Four thousand dollars are needed at once, and we are sure that every true-hearted Southern woman will feel it a privilege to assist in the great work."

"We propose to open a bazaar in Lexington, December 10th and beg you to send such contributions as you can collect by that date. Money, material, and manufactured articles will be most thankfully received. The splendid monument is to be placed on the site of the old battlefield, and the unveiling of the monument is to take place on July 21, 1891, the thirtieth anniversary of the first battle of Manassas, and we need the money to erect a suitable pedestal, under which there will be a vault, in which the remains of our great leader will be deposited."

"Remembering your hearty and generous response to a like appeal five years ago, when, by means of a bazaar, we secured the site for the monument, we feel confident of your help in this our second appeal."

"An effort is being made to get free transportation for all parcels and boxes sent by the express, and of this you will be advised through the newspapers."

"In answer to your response from you will lighten our labors and gladden our hearts."
